

SECOND LIGHT SPRING FESTIVAL 2010

MAY MADNESS

2009 POETRY COMPETITION ADJUDICATION
READINGS AND WORKSHOPS

Friday 14 and Saturday 15 MAY

FRI: 10:30am to 1:00pm – The Self behind the Mask, with Katherine Gallagher. Using example poems, we will look at different ways of approaching personal experience in writing-exercises – letting go of the 1st person or presenting through other voices in interesting, diverse ways.

FRI: 2:00 to 4:30pm – Magical Realism, with Pascale Petit. By playing with metaphor and opening up to the magical, we will embark on unexpected journeys beyond realism, discussing inspiring poems along the way.

FRI: 5:00 to 6:00pm – All Comers: Readings from Second Light members. Bring a poem or two to read. Come one, come all! Even if you're reading on Saturday... just don't read the same poems!

SAT: 10:30 to 1:00pm – Wild Ways into Poetry, with Myra Schneider. Through writing exercises and studying poems, we will look at unusual, exciting approaches to making raw material come alive, including introducing surreal elements

SAT: 2:00 to 4:00pm – Adjudication & Readings: Competition judge, Pauline Stainer, followed by readings from the competition winners and commended & shortlisted poets.

SAT: 5 to 6:00pm – Main Reading. Launch of *Carnival's Edge: New & Selected Poems, Katherine Gallagher, Maria Jastrzębska, Lyn Moir, Caroline Natzler and more...

£50 (£40 conc) for all three workshops and all readings (Priority Booking)
OR £20 per workshop subject to available places, including readings)

Venue: The Art Workers Guild, 6 Queen Square, London, WC1.
Nearest Tubes: Holborn/Russell Square.

Friday: The Gradidge Room Saturday: Ground Floor Room

Second Light members will be given preference for workshop bookings.
Men are welcome at the Adjudication & Readings.

Myra Schneider's most recent collection is Circling The Core (Enitharmon 2008) and Writing Your Self, her resource book of personal literature and writing (with John Killick), was published by Continuum International (2009). She is an experienced tutor and works for The Poetry School.

Pascale Petit's latest book is What the Water Gave Me – Poems after Frida Kahlo (Seren, May 2010). She has published five collections, two of which were shortlisted for the TS Eliot Prize and featured as Books of the Year in the TLS and the Independent. She teaches poetry writing courses at Tate Modern.

Katherine Gallagher's Carnival Edge: New & Selected Poems (Arc Publications, 2010) is her much-awaited fifth full collection of poetry – a wide-ranging selection from her previous books, alongside “fine new poems. Gallagher is a colourist ... a poet of the eye, the rainbow and of all the feeling senses” (Penelope Shuttle).

The Art Workers Guild is a delightful, peaceful venue, within 5 minutes walk of Russell Square tube station. Teas, coffees and cold drinks are supplied. Bring lunch to eat in the room or the park in Queen Square or there are local eateries on and around Southampton Row.
