

The Last Parent

Anne Stewart
Second Light Publications
April 2019

On poem sequence The Last Parent:

“In this remarkable collection ... passionate poems chronicle the mechanics of handling the Administration ... Intertwined, she skilfully weaves poems of loss” Peter Phillips

“... Anne does not flinch from the macabre humour that can creep into dreadful situations, to help us through ... this collection has moved me greatly.” Caroline Carver

As well as a wide selection of Stewart's poems since The Janus Hour (Oversteps, 2010), this collection includes a highly original sequence of some 30 poems under the eponymous title The Last Parent, which focusses on the bereaved daughter's role as Executor, juxtaposing the responses of both. Grieving and memories on the one hand; on the other, practical tasks and demanding paperwork. In an informative, helpful, documentary style, Stewart explores territory where contemporary poetry rarely treads.
